BHVSD To Investigate Arrest Of Black Television Producer

By Victoria Talbot

The Beverly Hills Police Department announced Thursday it has launched an internal review after it came under fire following the wrongful arrest of TV producer Charles Belk last Friday.

Belk, an African American, was misidentified as a suspected bank robber in an incident on Aug. 22. BHPD officers ended up later arresting 47-year-old Brianna Clemens Kloutze of Los Angeles in connection with the crime following an armed robbery at a bank in the 8400 block of Wilshire Boulevard.

Golden 50-Year Reunion For BHHS Class Of 1964

By Laura Coleman

The Beverly Hills High School class of 1964 lived in a different era when they stepped out into the world as adults 50 years ago. This weekend, over a quarter of the graduating class of 400 returned home for the first reunion in a decade to reminisce about the past and catch up with old friends.

“We lived in such a different age...it really was an age of innocence,” said reunion coordinator Lynn and Thomas are Toy Poodle siblings hoping to be adopted together.

BHUSD Resolves To Keep $10M Endowment In Beverly Hills

By Laura Coleman

The Board of Education is preparing to fight the state to keep a $10 million endowment it established last year. On Tuesday, the board voted to approve a resolution calling upon the legislature and the governor to repeal new language embedded in the state-approved budget requiring school districts to spend down reserve balances to create a “Rainy Day Fund” for the state.

“We spent a lot of time creating the reserve that we have and we don’t want people to tell us how to spend it,” Board President Lynn and Thomas are Toy Poodle siblings hoping to be adopted together.

Massive Somma Way Haul Route Approved By LADBS

By Victoria Talbot

The project that galvanized homeowners to fight back against overdevelopment and encroachment in Bel-Air just received a green light from Los Angeles Department of Building and Safety Tuesday.

Despite the opposition of dozens of residents present in the chambers including attorneys Richard Zeilenga and James Vaughn for the Bel-Air Homeowners Alliance (BABA), Shawn Bayless, Planning and Land Use Deputy for Los Angeles 11th District Paul Koretz, Leonard Nimoy, beloved star of Star Trek and Kristina Badaire, attorney for the Bel-Air Association - L.A. Board of Building and Safety Commissioners approved the hauling for a massive project at 10697 Somma Way.

Developers who wish to execute are only required to file for haul routes and grading permits; the LADBS hearing Tuesday was a request for inspection/grading by applicant Shannon Nunn to export 29,474-cubic yards of earth from the project site.

The project will require the removal of 50,000-cubic yards of soil, revealed BABA lawyers, including a previously undisclosed 19,634-cubic yards to excavate and install 270 soldier piles, for which the city of Los Angeles does not require disclosure in the haul route permit or Mitigated Negative Declaration (MND).

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the City of Beverly Hills, at its meeting to be held on Tuesday, September 2, 2014, at 7:00 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, CA 90210, will hold a public hearing to consider the following:

As proposed, the ordinance would extend the prohibition on the expansion of the level pad area of lots in the Hillside Area of the City for a period of up to 160 days beyond the ordinance’s current expiration date of September 12, 2014.

This Ordinance has been assessed in accordance with the authority and criteria contained in the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), the State CEQA Guidelines, and the environmental regulations of the City. It can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility that the adoption and implementation of the Interim Ordinance or extension thereof may have a significant effect on the environment. The extension of the Interim Ordinance does not authorize construction and, in fact, imposes greater restriction on certain development in order to protect the public health, safety and general welfare. This extension is therefore exempt from the environmental review requirements of CEQA pursuant to Section 15061(b)(3) of Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations.

At the public hearing, the City Council will hear and consider all comments. All interested persons are invited to attend and speak on this matter. Written comments may also be submitted and should be addressed to the City Council, c/o City Clerk, 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, CA 90210. The comments should be received prior to the hearing date.

Please note that if you challenge the Council’s action in regards to this matter in court, you may be limited to raising only those issues you or someone else raised at the public hearing described in this notice, or in written correspondence delivered to the City, either at or prior to the public hearing.

If there are any questions regarding this notice, please contact Ryan Gohlich, Senior Planner in the Beverly Hills Community Development Department at 310.285.1194, or by email at rgohlich@beverlyhills.org. The project file and associated documents are on file in the Community Development Department and can be reviewed by any interested person at 455 N. Rexford Drive, Beverly Hills, California 90210.

ROTARY TUTORING—Last year, Rotarian Jeffrey Tomlinson (left) tutored Beverly Hills youth Leorie Yosian to shine in math. Yosian came to Monday’s Rotary meeting to share her story and encourage others to volunteer their time. “I think, if Jeffrey has any friends in this Rotary club that are like him, they should come and help out tutoring students like me who used to hate math,” she told 120 Rotarians. Tomlinson is one of many who volunteer in after-school tutoring with the group and they appeared at the meeting to encourage other Rotarians to do just that — help other kids like Leorie with all subjects at school. Orientation for volunteers is Sept. 9 at Roxbury Park Auditorium 4-5:30 p.m. Call 310 – 285-6810 at the Beverly Hills Community Services Department or email adriennetutor@gmail.com. By Victoria Talbot

The Recreation and Parks Commission voted unanimously to form an ad hoc committee to liaison with the Joint Powers Agreement (JPA) between the City of Beverly Hills and the Beverly Hills Unified School District (BHUSD) to provide access to their facilities for recreation purposes.

The item was agendized at the request of Commissioner Frances Bilak. Director of Community Services Steve Zoet wrote that his Community Services staff represents the City and that there are no regularly scheduled meetings to discuss the JPA. Nonetheless, he added, “I administer the Commission, ‘staff does not...

Beverly Hills Police Nab Suspect In Home Burglary

By Victoria Talbot

A suspect caught in the process of a residential burglary was apprehended and taken into custody by the Beverly Hills Police Department Tuesday.

At approximately 3:20 p.m., BHPD received a 911 call from a witness chasing a male suspect seen running down the street with a purse in his hand. It was later determined that the suspect had just committed a residential burglary in the 800-block of North Roxbury Drive. The victim told officers that she was in the residence when the crime was in progress. She (see ‘BPD BURGLARY’ page 19).

Beverly Hills Resident Launches New Animal Rescue Foundation

By Steve Simmons

A new animal rescue organization has opened its doors in Beverly Hills, the Diana Gray Foundation, a pending 501 c3 charity, is saving hungry and homeless animals and off the streets of LA.

CEO Diana Gray has been involved in rescue for more than 12 years and has given hundreds of dogs their second chance by flying them with Pilots for Paws to different sanctuaries across the nation. Next year, she is launching the “Flying Dog Project, a rescue program that will take dogs that are "out of time" at U.S. shelters and fly them via Lufthansa into pre-approved homes in Germany. Jewish World Watch, Diverse Faith Leaders Send President Obama Letter To End ISIS Genocide

By Victoria Talbot

A diverse group of 103 religious leaders representing millions of Americans have signed a letter crafted by the Los Angeles-based Jewish World Watch, an anti-genocide organization, urging President Barack Obama to continue military and humanitarian intervention in Northern Iraq in response to the “serious genocidal threat” posed by the Islamic State.

In Beverly Hills, Rabbi Laura Geller, named one of America’s Top 50 Most Influential Rabbis by Newsweek Magazine, Rabbi Jonathan Aaron and Rabbi Sarah Bassin of Temple Emanuel of Beverly Hills have notably signed the document.

The diversity of faiths, said Geller, “attests to the seriousness of this issue... mass atrocities at the hands of ISIS. This is genocide. We need to say: 'enough.'” “This issue has implications far beyond the Middle East,” said Geller.

Morgan Stanley Drew Zager Ranks Among Barron’s Top Financial Advisors For 10th Time

By Laura Coleman

If your portfolio exceeds $10 million, chances are you’ve heard of Morgan Stanley Director Drew Zager. The L.A.-based private wealth advisor is among just 15 brokers to be ranked on Barron's Top 100 Financial Advisors since its inception in 2004 - a feat the 93-year-old financial publication will celebrate at this year's Top Advisor Summit in Orlando next month.

The national competition is considered the industry gold standard. Zager is considerate. He always be remembered as the perfect host who charmed celebrities, presidents, royalty, moguls and mobsters at Chasen’s for more than 40 years.

He was born Dec. 9, 1924 in Southampton, England as one of seven children, leaving home at an early age to work on cruise ships, where he learned the food and beverage business. On one of those voyages, he met his wife Anita and the couple moved to California in 1953.

Longtime Beverly Hills residents and civic leaders Lee and Gail Silver will be the 2014 honorees of the Foundation for Camp Max Straus at the agency’s brunch/family day event, on Sunday, Sept. 14 at Universal Studios’ Globe Theater.

The 52-year old foundation was established to ensure perpetual operational funding for Camp Max Straus, founded in 1938 by Jewish Big Brothers Big Sisters of Los Angeles (www.jbbbsla.org). It is a non-denominational, residential summer camp located on 112 acres in the Verdugo Hills of Glendale and has hosted more than 60,000 underserved and at-risk youth.

Lee Silver, a partner in the Beverly Hills law firm Ervin, Cohen & Jessup LLP, has served as a JBBBLSLA board member the past 22 years, including a two-year term as board chair.

U.S. Postal Service Unveils New ‘Hot Rod’ Stamps At The Petersen Auto Museum

By Matt Lopez

The United States Postal Service unveiled its engines and revealed its brand new “Hot Rod” postal stamps to a crowd full of car enthusiasts on Wednesday at the Petersen Auto Museum.

USPS Postmaster General Patrick R. Donahoe was an hand for the dedication ceremony, along with Petersen Executive Director Terry Karges and Barry Meguiar, host of Velocity Channel’s Car Crazies, who encircled the event.

“The U.S. Government honoring hot rodders, go figure!” Maguiar joked. “Is there anything more Americana than hot rods?”

There are two different stamps available with a different car on each: one is a red 1932 Highbury McGee Roadster owned by Bruce Meyer, a noted car lover who was the first chairman of the Petersen and current chairman (see HOT ROD STAMPS page 24).

“Shall we bet a couple of bucks about the new hot spot for making movies and television series in Europe?” asks producer Brad Krevoy, who’s filmed several productions thereabouts. His latest, Brad Krevoy, asks producer Simon Dutton for his second season of his semi-presidential Romanian “Romania”! declares Brad. “Where you’ll find the semi-presidential republic and a working class country with an economy based on oil, agriculture and service, Romania borders Hungary, Serbia, Moldova and Bulgaria.

Brad was among the usual crowd of swells dining at e. baldi on Canon Drive in Beverly Hills, where Edoardo Baldi’s cooking attracts hungry devotees for his fresh and delicious food that many of us would like to order every day.

Brad’s hooked on the floor-in-fresh Dover sole and the dolce of cherry crumble, others return for those sweetly delicate langoustines flown in daily from the Mediterranean. Caravines are crazy about Edoardo’s steaks. And veal. And his minestrone soup remains non pareil.

A cinematographers, ADs, grips, etc. will surprise you. Highly talented people and nice, too, with Romanian cinema winning major honors at festivals, including Cannes.”

Coming and going at e. baldi that evening were Al Pacino in the large booth with a bevy of beauties (Al orders his spaghetti with a wealth of healthy garlic); Kansas’ gorgeous gift to America Cynthia Sikes with handsome son Michael, whose dad is handsome Bud Yorkin; Geyer, a bevy of beauties (Al orders her spaghetti with a wealth of healthy garlic); Kansas’ gorgeous gift to America Cynthia Sikes with handsome son Michael, whose dad is handsome Bud Yorkin; Geyer, who manages the indomitable Angelina Jolie, now Mrs. Brad Pitt.

Also: Louise Linton, whose knockout figure continually crashes the sex meter. She arrived with financier Steve Mnuchin (Avatar, Gravity, the upcoming Batman Vs. Superman). Steve sold Bank One for $3.4 billion.

“We had a great summer filming in Europe, with daughter Olivia making her screen debut in A Royal Christmas,” added Brad, noting daughter Sophia studied French arts and culture at the Oxbridge School in Paris.

In Romania, Amy Krell is Brad’s producing partner, and the studio they partner with, Castel Films. Operated by Cristi Bostanescu, the head of production, and owner Vlad Paunescu, who are excellent contact people to know. Brad’s tireless assistant Vince Balzano finds the world architecture in the capital city of Bucharest worth visiting “but the new buildings from the Communist regime appear ‘pedestrian’.”

Supplied by an actor base from London, Romanian crews are outstanding.

Noteworthy films made in Romania include The Zero Theorem, starring the do-no-wrong Christoph Waltz, and 2012’s award-winning Hatfields And McGays starring Kevin Costner and Bill Paxton. Not to overlook that 2003 Civil War romance with Renee Zellweger, Jude Law, and Nicole Kidman, based on Charles Frazier’s longest bestselling novel, Cold Mountain.

This week, Brad begins prep for his second season of When Calls the Heart with James Brolin, Lori Loughlin and Aaron Krakow for Hallmark. He’ll next tackle the reboot on the popular television series, The Saint, and will also work on Stan Lee’s Firebrand about a feisty female with very scary powers.

On Nov. 14, Universal releases Dumb And Dumber To, which Brad executive-produced with longtime partner Steve Stabler. Co-starring those shameless bozos, Jim Carrey and Jeff Daniels, back from their 1994 joyride, Dumb And Dumber, that, in our opinion, is a 10-best classic in the annals of rauncharama.

On Saturday, more than 300 of Beverly Hills’ most prominent art lovers attended a benefit at the new Marc Selwyn Fine Art Gallery in Beverly Hills. The benefit was to raise funds for the Friends of Beverly Gardens Park for the restoration of the Electric Fountain at Wilshire and Santa Monica Boulevards. The restoration effort still needs at least $200,000 to complete the project.
The Jewish National Fund (JNF) will honor Grammy- and Emmy-winning composer and resident Charles Fox with its Tree of Life Award at its annual free Tree of Life Gala at The Beverly Hilton on Sunday, Sept. 14. "I'm so proud to be receiving this award," said Fox. "I grew up in the Bronx, where there was always a JNF Blue Box sitting in the middle of our kitchen table; so I've always known of the great work JNF does for Israel."

Fox has written the music for more than 100 motion pictures and television films, including the themes for Happy Days, Laverne & Shirley and The Love Boat. He has worked with such legendary artists as Roberta Flack, Sarah Vaughan, Barry Manilow, Jim Croce, Fred Astaire, Luther Vandross and Johnny Cash.

Fox composed the Grammy winning Killing Me Softly, the film scores for Goodbye Columbus and Nine to Five, and the music for the TV docu-drama Victory at Entebbe.

Fox was awarded the 1992 BMI Richard Kirk Award for Outstanding Life Achievement in Music, and was inducted into the Songwriter Hall of Fame in 2004. He is a governor of the Motion Picture Academy, and spearheaded and co-produced the first ever Oscars Concert in the week leading up to the 2014 Oscars, at Royce Hall.

JNF's Tree of Life Award is a humanitarian award "given in recognition of outstanding community involvement, dedication to the cause of American-Israeli friendship, and devotion to peace and security of human life." We are honored to recognize Charles Fox," said Allison Krumholz, JNF’s Los Angeles executive director. "We salute him for the enormous generosity he has shown to JNF, Israel, and the entire Jewish community."

The celebrity-studded event will also see Gov. Jerry Brown and his wife Anne Gust Brown honored with JNF’s Green Innovation Award, an environmental award that recognizes and honors community members with exemplary forward-thinking and sustainable practice in environmental management and conservation.

This year’s gala is taking place during JNF’s National Conference, which brings together hundreds of committed Jewish leaders from across the country to learn about the key issues of the day that affect Jews in the U.S. and in Israel as well as JNF’s ongoing work for the land and people of Israel.

Space is limited and advance registration is required. RSVP at www.jnf.org/flagala or contact Jennifer Playstead at jplaystead@jnf.org or 323-964-1400, ext. 958.

Life Of Crime, November Man—Escapate Fare

Life Of Crime starring Jennifer Aniston, Tim Robbins and Isla Fisher is a pleasant diversion from a hectic week at the office. Not more, not less. The only writer who, in my estimation, was able to capture the humor and irony of an Elmore Leonard novel adaptation to the screen is Scott Frank with the superb Get Shorty. Writer/Director Daniel Schechter makes a valiant effort with Leonard’s novel, The Switch, but he falls short.

Aniston is cute as the unhappy wife whose husband (Robbins) is a crooked real-estate millionnaire who has a secret offshore account. Aniston is also blind to the fact that when he jets off to the Bahamas, which is often, it’s not for real estate business, but for monkey business with Fisher. A couple of enterprising hoods decide to kidnap Aniston when Robbins is away on one of his trips and send him a note demanding a ransom for her safe return… or else!

As he has already filed for divorce, unknown to his demure wife who receives the document on the day she is captured, he refuses to pay.

The film plays out with some clever turns and harmless humor although I found the pace to be a bit slow. The surprise ending is almost worth the pay. Aniston is adequate in her role, Robbins is just as good as the cad and Fisher is wonderful.

2 Bagels out of 4 ———–

November Man is sort of a buddy movie starring Pierce Brosnan and a capable Luke Bracey who romp through it with guns blazing and a person foriacial nerve for one another when they are not buddies.

Before entering the theatre, check your logic with the ticket-taker because trying to figure out who the good CIA guys are as opposed to the bad CIA guys will be futile.

And, if you are into car chases, fighting with fists, iron tubing, shovel and other destructive pieces of metal and shootings with a preponderance of blood spurts, this movie was made for you. Incidentally, Director Roger Donaldson does a terrific job in keeping the action non-stop.

Before plunking down a few hard-earned bucks to see The November Man, my suggestion is wait for December when it will be shown on cable.

Library’s World Suicide Prevention Day Program To Discuss Mental Health System

On Tuesday, Sept. 9, World Suicide Prevention Day, Joan F. Childs, psychologist and author of Why Did She Jump? My Daughter’s Battle With Bipolar Disorder and other experts will participate in a panel discussion about the mental healthcare system in Los Angeles at 6:30 p.m. at the Beverly Hills Public Library 444 N. Redford Dr.

The theme of World Suicide Prevention Day this year is “Suicide Prevention: One World Connected.” “Through cultivating personal relationships and connections we can counter-act the number of suicides per year,” said Childs. Every year, almost one million people die from suicide, which is one life, lost every 40 seconds. That number exceeds the number of deaths due to homicide and war combined, say mental health experts.

“The quality of mental health care is important to lower the number of deaths by suicide,” says Childs, a licensed clinical social worker based in Florida.

Mending Kids Provides 17 Free Life-Altering Surgeries During The HomeTown Mission

Mending Kids once again sponsored surgeries for young people at its HomeTown Mission earlier this month at Specialty Surgical Center in Beverly Hills. Seventeen children, from 17 months to 20 years, received free, surgeries for hand and ear deformities, cysts, lumps, urological and necessary plastic surgeries from eight volunteer surgeons led by Andrew Friedman, M.D.

The patients included 15 from the U.S. (California, North Carolina and Nevada) as well as a young woman from Kenya requiring one follow-up surgery now and more later, and a 2-year-old girl from Guatemala.

The children’s lives were (see ‘MENDING KIDS’ page 13)

Providence St. John’s Health-Education Program To Feature Compression-Only CPR Training

“Heart Sunday—Your Heart and Stayin’ Alive,” a program featuring CPR training and Providence St. John’s Health Center cardiologists will be offered from 1-3 p.m. on National Grandparent’s Day, Sunday, Sept. 7 in the hospital’s Keck Center, 2121 Santa Monica Blvd. The St. John’s Health Center Foundation in collaboration with the Santa Monica Fire Department and Bowers Ambulance are also sponsors.

A leading cause of death in the U.S., sudden cardiac arrest differs from heart attack and affects nearly 360,000 Americans each year, including youths. Just 10-percent of these patients survive. For some, cardiac arrest is the first sign that a heart problem exists. When cardiac arrest patients are treated quickly with CPR and automated external defibrillators (AEDs) before emergency medical services arrive, average survival rates climb to nearly 40 percent. With this intervention, more than 100,000 lives could be saved.

The program will be moderated by the event’s honorary chairman Dr. John M. Robertson, medical director of cardiological surgery and chair of the St. John’s Health Center Foundation board.

Dr. Nicole Weinberg, will discuss sudden cardiac arrest and share ways to keep the heart healthy.

Dr. Shephal Doshi, medical director, of cardiac arrest and ways it can be prevented or treated with CPR and defibrillators.

Survivors of cardiac arrest and family members will share their experiences.

Free skills training in compression-only CPR will highlight the event. Paramedics from the Santa Monica Fire Department and Bowers Ambulance, as well as Providence St. John’s nurses, physicians and community nurses will lead the compression-only CPR training. (No credit or certificates will be given for this training program.)

Required preregistrations may be made by calling 310 829-8453 or emailing SpecialEvents@sjohns.org. Complimentary valet parking will be available at the main entrance to the hospital on Santa Monica Boulevard.
On the Importance of A Stress-Free Life, Decline Of Video Arcades, Being The ‘Homework Cop’

Q. Dear Dr. Fran, why is it important for people to have peace in their lives? Everyone talks about getting rid of stress.

A.Dear Rob: Stress can interrupt our sound judgment, regular eating and sleeping habits, and our ability to make important decisions yet, because most moms are always on alert, they are giving in and giving him what he wants. “On the contrary, every time a parent allows her child to wrestle with and struggle against a disappointment, they are giving their child an opportunity to grow.”

A. Dear Jill: To avoid one of the biggest conflict traps between parents and kids, buy a timer to replace the tutor or “Homework Helper” to cut down on parent-child friction. The timer is a first-step, less expensive way to go.

Here is the cheapest one I could find: TruTimer 60 Minute Mechanical Timer at $3.89 each. I also found one at my local 99-Cent store made by a different manufacturer.

Q. Dear Dr. Fran: I am dreading facing homework with my fourth grader. Last year she and I argued for hours until she finished her assignments. Can you help with how to best deal with their kids during their 40-hour required work week, they fight up on necessary boundaries and rules. This cultural issue dominated by the financial downturn in America has affected Arcades on the Decline. Familiar have brought виде games into their homes as an experience by their children versus as a weekend privilege for school and home good behavior.

Dr. Fran’s “Lies Parents Tell Themselves” herewith: My kids shouldn’t cry for or feel a sad disappointment, it’s better to give in and give him what he wants.” On the contrary, every time a parent allows their child to wrestle with and struggle against a disappointment, they are giving their child an opportunity to grow.

Dr. Frank Wallish, Avocet Park Medical Center, and the generosity of the medical staff, donors, most of whom are largely from small towns and rural areas, who are largely from small towns and rural areas. Oftentimes, financial restrictions, lack of knowledge about public programs, or denials from government agencies prevent children from receiving needed surgeries, from reconstructive to more serious, all of which are transfor- mational. Thirty minutes in the operating room makes the differ- ence between a childhood of bullying and a childhood of self-esteem and normal develop- ment,” says Mending Kids’ Executive Director Marchelle L. Sellers.

Pierre, from Las Vegas, had a large lump growing on his left ear. He endured his first surgery last year, courtesy of Mending Kids, and returns for a follow-up surgery.

His mother had begged agencies to fund the removal. The single mother of four who works nights just to get by until she lost her job, says: “No one would pay because they say the lump is cosmetic.” He wanted this surgery for years and Mending Kids was the only agency to say yes. Now, he has started school and no one will ever know he had this. It will not define him.”

Another dramatic example works for a child from Korea, in the U.S. for her second surgery to separate the rest of her fingers on her webbed hand. Faith has numerous other congenital defects including a heart defect and her speech is not yet up to par. She will require several surgeries, she was hosted by a family that hosted other Mending Kids children, including, one permanent addition to its household.

Mending Kids (www.mend- ingkids.org) is an American non-profit that funds thousands of surgeries in more than 54 countries since its 2006 founding through surgical mis- sions, surgeries and the Home- town Mission program. Funds are raised via donations and events including M.K.’s Nov. 8, “Wings around the Galaxy” gala.

Last Sunday was the Transformation Celebration where children, their parents and kids, host parents, doctors, medical staff, Mending Kids board mem- bers, and celebrities including Mel Gibson, helped the children begin their new and healthier lives. Douglas Elliman Names Colin Keenan VP, Manager

By Victoria Talbot

Douglas Elliman Real Estate announced that longtime Westside broker Colin Keenan has been named senior VP/managing broker of their first California brokerage in Beverly Hills, opened earlier this year in a targeted expansion of their East Coast enterprise.

“We’re thrilled that Colin has joined our firm,” said Dottie Herman, president/CEO of Douglas Elliman. “He is among the best of the best!”

Keenan has been a long-time player in the Westside luxury real estate world of Los Angeles.

“Douglas Elliman is unquestionably one of the most prestigious and successful real estate firms in the country,” said Colin. “I am proud to be a part of the Elliman family.”

“We are the largest residential brokerage in New York City and have a presence from the Hamptons to South Florida,” said Keenan. “Beverly Hills is a natural extension of our footprint to best serve our clientele.”

Keenan is a good fit with Douglas Elliman. “We are unique in our size and scope of services. We are more than 5,000 agents in 75 offices. That reach is extremely powerful when it comes to buyers and sellers – especially now that there is so much international interest in key U.S. markets like NYC, Miami and Los Angeles. We have an international relationship with Knight Frank Residential, the largest brokerage in the UK, also allows us to cast a wide net into the global market,” said Keenan.

Keenan will oversee a select team of 20 agents with plans for expansion in the near future. “I see Beverly Hills continuing to be a destination location. It is simply a place more and more people want to be,” he said.

Asked how Elliman will differentiate themselves, Keenan was confident. “Doing what is in the best interest of our customers. We want to service their needs at every stage of the real estate journey, from initial search to successful closing, and beyond. We want to be a trusted voice in an industry and to empower our customers.”

Keenan worked his way up to establish himself as a respected leader in the real estate community. With a degree in classical composition from Boston’s Berklee School of Music, Keenan began his career in real estate as a “copy boy” at John Aaroe & Associates. Eventually, he became licensed and was named Assistant Manager. He later served as manager at Prudential California in Santa Monica. He was eventually selected to run Teles Properties Brentwood office and oversee compliance for the firm. The past three years he ran the Brentwood office of Nourmand & Associates until being selected for the Elliman position.

ALS Ice Bucket Challenge

This week, the Beverly Hills/Greater Los Angeles Association of Realtors called on its more than 8,000 members to help reach its goal of raising $10,000 for the ALS Association by Sept. 30. BHGLAAR is accepting donations at its offices and through its website at www.bglaar.com.

The ALS Ice Bucket Challenge started in 2012 when Pete Frates, 29, was diagnosed with Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), often referred to as “Lou Gehrig’s Disease.”

ALS is a progressive neurodegenerative disease that affects nerve cells in the brain and spinal chord, affecting muscle control, eventually leading to paralysis.

The disease affects two in 100,000 people in the United States, according to the ALS Association, with more than half of all patients living three years after diagnosis.

Frates made a video pouring an ice bucket on his head and challenged a few friends to do the same. The #ALS Ice Bucket Challenge was born. Soon, it became viral and people everywhere were taking the challenge, creating videos to show their support and raise money to fight ALS.

The 8,100-member Beverly Hills/Greater Los Angeles Association of Realtors serves the cities of Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, Santa Monica, Culver City and West Hollywood.

Headquartered in Los Angeles, the organization was established in 1996.

It was a magical time," was the oft-repeated phrase throughout a weekend of activities which included principal-led tours of the four K-8s, cocktail parties, a reunion dinner at the Beverly Hills Tennis Club and a tree planting ceremony at the high school.

Half a century ago, Beverly Hills was truly a small town; a safe town with a connected community. It was the time when horses still traipsed down Rodeo on the bridal path and long gone shops and hang-out spots littered Beverly, like Wil Wright’s Ice Cream Parlor which served up ice cream so rich it would stick to the roof of your mouth. "It was Marilyn’s favorite," recalled one alum of the 98-percent butterfat ice cream that came with a macaroon cookie.

At an intimate gathering held at the home of reunion committee member Carol Sheinkopf Goldsmith, one Hawthorne School class of 1960 graduate recounted the simplicity of the era and the sense of trust that pulsed through the community. “It was really simple,” he reminisced about visiting friends. “You just walked over to your friend’s house. If the front door was locked, you go around to the side door, walk in and go up to your friend’s bedroom.” In general, doors were left unlocked. And if there was 50's-era hooliganism afoot, kids would be warned with a declaration that parents’ would be told. It was also an age of incredible change. As seniors, students were at school when news of John F. Kennedy’s assassination swept the world in November 1963. Memories of students crying on campus, and schools shutting for days are still ingrained in the graduates. But their senior year was also the time when the Beatles came to the U.S. and social mores began to shift. Then the draft came in 1966. At Saturday evening’s grand event at the Tennis Club, over burgers and franks, barbecue chicken, decadent desserts, an open bar and Stardust wine from alum Michael Dellar’s Napa Vineyard, 180 attendees (including guests of the graduates) celebrated what is being touted as the first 50th reunion of the Baby Boomers. There were those who went to Santa Monica College. Those who went to Stanford, USC, Cal, UCLA or to no college at all. Those who had become homemakers and writers and leaders of industry and Veterans of the Vietnam War. Roughly 360 BHHS 64’ graduates are still living. “What we’ve learned over the years, is that people really want to just be together,” Kavanaugh said. “We all realize how precious these times are together.”

Ann E. Massman
Apr. 6, 1915 - Aug. 25, 2014

Ann E. Massman, age 99, died peacefully in the comfort of her home in Beverly Hills on Monday, August 25th, surrounded by family and Ron Nakagawa, a close family friend. Born on April 6, 1915, in Montreal, Canada, to Louis and Sarah Shipp, Ann moved with her parents, brother and sister to Los Angeles in 1929. She graduated from Los Angeles High School and briefly worked for Max Factor and Warner Bros. Studios before devoting herself to making a home for her husband, Jack Massman, whom she married in 1940, and their three sons, Stephen, Martin and Bruce. Jack, a successful manufacturer, and Ann shared 51 happy years before she lost the love of her life in 1991.

Admired widely for her longtime support of the Los Angeles Jewish Home and Beverly Hills Hadassah of which she was a member, she was active with City of Hope, Vista Del Mar and the Jewish Federation. Ann had a large circle of close friends with whom she subsidized and traveled. But her number one priority always was family. In addition to sons Stephen (Donna), Martin and Bruce (Sandee), her survivors include grandchildren Michael, Brent, Matthew and Travis, and great-grandchildren, Jane and Mack.

Contributions to the Los Angeles Jewish Home at 2160 Tampa Ave., Reseda, CA 91335 in her memory would be most appreciated.
Children's Hospital Los Angeles Offers Back To School Tips

Sharpened pencils: check; notebooks and paper: check; school schedule: check. As a parent, this check list may seem familiar. It's a clear indication that back-to-school season is here and that means preparing your child for the school year as best as you can.

1. Update Your Child’s Vaccinations

Vaccination is key to a child’s health. Vaccinations have greatly reduced the number of hospitalizations, disabilities, and deaths because of infections such as measles, whooping cough, and chickenpox. Just this past year, the California Department of Public Health reported a large increase in measles infections such as measles, whooping cough, and chickenpox.

“Although these diseases are vaccine-preventable, they continue to circulate worldwide and cause infections in unvaccinated children here in the U.S.,” says Dr. Jeffrey Bender, MD, a CHLA infectious diseases specialist. “It’s important that children receive and update their vaccines for the well-being of themselves and others.”

To see a list of recommended vaccinations for different age groups, the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) offers parents an online immunization schedule.

2. Hygiene

As children head back to school, they will be interacting with more children than they have been at home. This translates into a child being exposed to different germs—increasing the risk of bringing home an infection or being infected themselves.

James Stein, MD, associate chief of surgery and chief medical quality officer at CHLA explains that it’s never too early to teach children about the importance of washing their hands. To reduce the spreading of germs, kids should wash their hands at school at the following times:

• Before lunch and break times.
• After using the toilet; coughing, sneezing, or blowing their nose; playing outside in the playground; touching or handling pets; and whenever hands have touched a dirty surface or look dirty.

3. Baseline Concussion Evaluations

For those with children in school sports activities, parents should consider baseline concussion evaluations conducted by a health-care provider trained in concussion evaluation and management at the start of each season.

Bianca Edison, MD, MS, FAAP, attending physician at CHLA’s Children’s Orthopaedic Sports Medicine and Concussion Program, says, “These evaluations should be a part of every athlete’s pre-participation sports physical.”

Such evaluations include a thorough medical and concussion history as well as a clinical exam to assess the athlete’s balance and brain function (memory skills, concentration and problem-solving). Results from the baseline evaluation can be compared to a similar exam during the season in the setting of a suspected concussion and help inform your child’s clinician whether it is safe to return to school and play.

“Concussion evaluations are invaluable in that they allow for an educative opportunity for both the athlete and family involved, information on concussion recognition, safe return to school and play on recovery, warning signs for emergent care and future risk factors can all be addressed in this setting,” continues Edison.

Dr. Michelle Pollock, MD, director of CHLA’s Sports Medicine and Concussion Program explains more on WednesdaysOnline.

4. Stress-Free Mornings

There isn’t really a magical solution to having mornings run smoothly, but finding ways to and a child feel invested in getting ready on time might come close. Karen Rogers, PhD, program area leader of CHLA’s Project Heal Program has a few suggestions on how mornings can run smoother throughout the school year.

• Have a routine. Let your child know which steps need to be completed and by when. Consider posting a list of morning jobs, such as eating breakfast and brushing their teeth, so they can be more independent.
• Use lots of praise and encouragement. This helps your child know exactly what they did that worked, to feel good about their self and to remember to do the same thing tomorrow.
• Set a good example. The model you provide for your child is one of your best teaching tools. For example, think outdoors for your child, too. “Now that I had breakfast, I need to brush my teeth.”
• Start the night before. Review any changes to the schedule for the next day. Checking homework, clothes are put in backpacks and lunches are prepared to be packed up.

5. Asthma and Allergy Action Plans

One out of five Americans is impacted with asthma and allergies and according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) food allergies in children have increased 50 percent from 1997 to 2011.

It is important to work with your child’s doctor or nurse to prepare an action plan for any health issues your child may encounter. “Children with allergies, like the majority of children today, have increased intakes of food in their food or treatment to maintain normal activity levels,” says Ronald Ferdman, MD, CHLA pediatric asthma and allergy specialist. “Review any medical records or prescription information with the school nurse or teachers to ensure proper dosage and care.”

Equipped with the knowledge of how your child’s asthma or allergies are triggered, you can take preventive measures, such as knowing the symptoms that precede a reaction. Download a copy of an Asthma Action Plan or Food Allergy Action Plan (Anaphylaxis Plan), http://www.foodallergy.org/document.doc?id=234.

6. Getting to School Safely

Walking and biking to school is a fun and safe activity. Children need to be safe while doing it. “Before starting school, parents should help their child practice a safe route to school and to remind children to avoid taking shortcuts, never take rides from strangers, watch for cars whenever crossing a crosswalk and to always remain visible by carrying a flashlight or wearing reflective gear,” says Helen Artogast, MPH, CHES, manager of CHLA’s Injury Prevention Program.

Children should have helmets and it is important that children always wear their helmet, to look out for cars, ride with the flow of traffic, and parents must check if their child’s bike is in a safe riding condition.

Children who have cell phones and other devices should be taught to use them responsibly. An advantage of using devices while walking, Distractions can cause pedestrians serious injuries.

7. Playground Safety

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, more than 200,000 children visit the hospital emergency room each year with playground-related injuries. Almost half of these injuries is to teach children safe playground behaviors at home or in a public park before they start the school year.

“Always evaluate your child’s behaviors around others and make sure that they follow the playground rules,” says Helen Artogast, MPH, CHES, manager of CHLA’s Injury Prevention Program.

“Children tend to increase risk by using equipment intended for older children and by improperly using equipment, such as sliding down equipment backwards or jumping off monkey bars. Be sure to immediately stop that behavior to avoid a trip to the emergency room,” says Edison.

It is also critical for parents to actively supervise children whenever they are playing. For children there is no substitute for adult supervision.

8. Staying Active

Back to school means a big change in schedules for kids. Children, who may have had the chance to run, play and swim every day, will now be spending more time sitting and working on homework. Therefore, it is up to parents to remind their kids of the importance of regular physical activity to maintain a healthy mind and body, Steven Mittelman, MD, PhD, director, CHLA’s Concussion Program, recommends the following to keep kids active:

• Join a sport. While kids are involved in a regular sport or physical activity, exercise doesn’t feel like a chore. Find something your child wants to do as they are much more likely to stick with it and get their exercise.
• Model good health. When kids see their parents exercising, they learn the importance of healthy activity much better than when they are told about it. This can also make you healthier and happier as well.

Be active together. Between school, extracurricular activities, digital media and friends, kids have a lot more on their minds nowadays. Taking a walk together as a family in the evening can be a great time to discuss and talk about school and school-related interactions. Hiking or biking together on the weekend can be a great bonding experience to refresh the mind and body for the week ahead.

Exercise can also improve mental performance. Taking a walk, going for a bike ride or doing some exercise can allow students to get back to their work with an open mind and a better attitude.

To see a list of recommended vaccinations for different age groups, the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) offers parents an online immunization schedule.

Simply the safety of the residents or the residents of Los Angeles. It records shows that Moshiri is of trucks would be extremely the commission that the dust become a new ally of the resi- of trucks originally came to him with for a 10,000 square foot home, but that the “deep- seat landslide” made the project “well below standards.” His proposal to sink 270 sol- der piles was the solution described a “deep, large landslide, 40-60 feet deep.” Retaining walls would not suffice. “We had to remove as much of the landslide as possi- ble,” he said. “Without it, we would not be able to move for- ward.”

Zeilenga, legal counsel for the Alliance, characterized that argument as “a preposterous fiction that would not be able to move for- ward.”

Zeilenga pointed out “other geotechnical experts the project, such as Leighton & Associates, retained by the developers worked fur- ther to develop a sensible binder intended to prove other geotechnical experts had conclud- ed that there were other fea- sible ways to stabilize the hillside without out- excavating the entire hillside with a 40,000- square foot hotel-sized structure. It is the desire of the specula- tor to build a 4,000 -square foot building on a known landslide, that causes the need to remove the entire hillside.”

Property values have increased substantially, encour- aging investors to build on geo- logically unstable land. A “spec home,” the Somma Way property is not one family’s dream home. Zeilenga produced a mas- sive binder intended to prove to the commissioners that the project held significant adverse impacts to the Bel-Air commu- nity at the project site and on a cumulative impact basis. Among those impacts he outlined truck traffic impacts, air quality impacts, noise/vibration impacts and fire and emer- gency access and evacuation impacts.

Somma Way is a tiny street that measures 211'-239' across, with 22 homes situated above Stone Canyon Road and the hotel. From the hotel north, there is only one method of ingress and express. A single truck stalled on Stone Canyon would trap all the resi- dents who reside above the hotel. Somma Way is so narrow that any vehicle in the oncom- ing lane must back down the road to allow the other vehicle to exit.

The Bel-Air Homeowners Alliance (BAHA) has emerged at the forefront of a battle between Los Angeles City departments, commissions, council members and the resi- dents of the community who oppose these massive, hotel-sized structures that are permit- ted as if they are ordinary resi- dential buildings. In fact, say the homeown- ers, buildings over 20,000- square foot should be subjected to the same permitting and approvals as commercial build- ings.

These properties should be subject to the same environ- mental review process, includ- ing EIRs.

The organization is gaining traction throughout the hillside areas of Los Angeles, which are all experiencing these issues.

Over-sized construction vehicles, such as those that killed two LAPD officers in the Trousdale Estates’ area of Beverly Hills, are used to haul away the dirt and cement mix- ers shore up the excavations. Residents have endured blocked streets, unpermitted hauling and excavations, side- walking and even, as reported in The Courier, a rolled vehicle. Yet, LADBS continues to issue permits and approvals, relying on a few flagmen as the solu- tion.

The affirmative vote will send the project before the Los Angeles City Council where it is expected that BAHA counsel will oppose it again. From there, should it be approved, the residents will take their project opposition to court and commence litigation.

Howard was born in Arcadia. His family moved to Norco where he spent his early years on the family egg farm. The family then moved to Corona before eventually settling in Beverly Hills.

He graduated with honors from Beverly Hills High School in 1974, enthusiastically participating in graphic arts, and developed a mentor relationship with his teacher, Mr. Sam Frias. Through his guidance Howard became lead printing pressman and printed the school newspaper "Highlights" and all the school publications. Howard also played many sports at Beverly Hills High School and lettered in both football and wrestling. His handsome 6’2” stature was a formidable opponent both on the field and on the mat.

Howard attended Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, where he majored in Poultry Science. He also attended the University of Oregon, Eugene.

After graduating, Howard began his career in the egg business working at his family’s business - Norco Ranch, Inc. He was vice president of production and planning.

Howard is survived by his mother, Hilda Eisen of Beverly Hills; sisters Ruth and Janice of Beverly Hills; sister Mary Cramen of Anaheim Hills; and 8 nieces and nephews. Howard Eisen will be greatly missed by his three devoted sisters.

Beverly Hills, agreed with the Municipal League of Rosoff and Commissioner White that the city’s decision to close North Linden Drive between North and South Linden was the only way to ensure the safety of children playing in the area. The decision was made after the city received complaints from parents and residents about the traffic and safety issues on the street.

While the city took the necessary steps to ensure the safety of children, the question of who should pay for the program remains unanswered. The city has provided $10,000 to cover the costs, but it is unclear if the program will continue beyond this funding.

The city is currently exploring options to fund the program. One possibility is to use funds from the city’s general fund. Another option is to seek donations from businesses and individuals who are interested in supporting the program.

The city is also considering the possibility of offering the program to other communities in the area. This would allow the city to share the costs and maximize the impact of the program.

In conclusion, the city of Beverly Hills has taken a proactive approach to ensuring the safety of children playing in the area. While the question of who should pay for the program remains unanswered, the city is exploring options to ensure the program continues to have a positive impact on the community.

Linda Schwartz Hosts A Gemini Birthday Party Luncheon At The Peninsula
A champagne toast celebrated fellow Gemini Wilhelmina Diener’s 80th, and Marci Landis’ 70th. Gorgeous flower arrangements were by Juliet and Bob Sim of Bouvardia. Chef David Codney and Pastry Chef Kate Cowan created the delicious menu. Kimiko and The Peninsula staff made the afternoon one to remember.

BHPD BURGLARY
interrupted the burglar, who then kicked the victim in the chest and fled.

While exiting the residence, he grabbed the victim’s purse which was later dropped by the suspect and returned to the victim.

BHPD units arrived on scene within one minute. They observed a male matching the victim’s description running from the home. Police set up a perimeter in the 700-block of North Linden Drive between Lomitas and Elevation.

BHPD, assisted by K-9 units, located the suspect hiding in a backyard within the hour. He was taken into custody and transported to a local hospital with minor injuries.

The victim of the original crime on North Rosbury Drive positively identified the suspected burglar as the person that was in the residence who had committed the crime.

BHPD detectives remain on the scene to process the crime scene and to collect evidence.

The Los Angeles Police Department Air Unit, the Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department and the K-9 assets from Culver City and Santa Monica Police aided the BHPD investigation.

JPA AD HOC
foresee the need for the Commission’s involvement at this level of operation.”

Commissioners disagreed with this assessment. They voted to form an ad hoc committee with Chair Howard Rossoff and Commissioner Frances Bilak acting as liaisons.

Thomas White, president of the Municipal League of Beverly Hills, agreed with the ad hoc committee. The JPA agreement provides that the City of Beverly Hills pays BHUSD about $9.7 million per year in exchange for access to their facilities. “The Commission and Recreation and Parks have every right to treat the JPA resources as supplemental resources to make for a robust inventory of recreational facilities for the City,” said White.

Bilak pointed out that on weekends from 8-5, the agreement states that all five schools are to be opened by a district employee. “At Hawthorne the playground was closed all summer,” she said. “Beverly Vista where they have summer camp was the only playground open all summer.”

“If we perform an audit,” said White, “there is quite a bit of differential between what the JPA says is supposed to be provided and what is provided. That appears to be something to be looked at by the ad hoc committee.”

PAYINGER
Fenster said.

On July 16, Payinger originally filed suit in Federal District Court for damages against the BHUSD and Board of Education member Lewis Hall. He alleged discrimination and demanded a trial by jury.

The amended lawsuit deletes a request for any “punitive and/or exemplary damages,” in addition to the allegation that the district “intentionally publicly disclosed” confidential information regarding Mr. Payinger.” The amended lawsuit also removes the allegation that the district’s conduct was, “malicious, wanton, or oppressive, was driven by evil motive or intent, or involved a reckless or callous indifference to the constitutional rights of Mr. Payinger.”

“We notified Mr. Payinger’s attorney that there was no legal basis to pursue punitive damages against the district and further, that the claim that the district intentionally disclosed confidential information was precluded as a matter of law,” Fenster said.

Payinger’s attorney Reed Aljian did not respond to multiple requests seeking comment.

ANIMAL RESCUE

Their newest rescue couple, Romeo and Juliet, a golden mix and a husky mix, are in need of a long-term foster or an adoptive home. The two were severely emaciated and dehydrated when they were found in the desert with signs of horrific abuse.

To cover the $10,000 bills for these dogs, a special charity auction is in progress that offers many art, designer furniture and decorative treasures.

To meet Romeo and Juliet or learn more about the auction contact the Diana Gray Foundation, at (121) 420-4774.
It was a delightful afternoon. The Courier’s cartoonist, Janet Salter, was honored with the Zelda White “Woman of the Year Achievement Award” in The Beverly Wilshire at the 84th Tree of Life Luncheon, hosted by Associates-IMC, the prestigious auxiliary of the Los Angeles Jewish Home.

After Lilli Cutler, president of Associates-IMC, welcomed the 300 guests, Molly Forrest, CEO/president of the Jewish Home, made a heartfelt speech, and Rabbi Jacob Pressman led the Motzi.

Event Chair Joy Broek thanked all those who worked on the luncheon, including Committee Chairs Terri Bloomgarden, Roberta Delavie, Florence Corbin, Earl Greinetz, Claire Kunin, Lynda Manzur, Linda Matloff, Diane Miller, Nancy Salka, Melinda Seltzer, Joan Silver and Gloria Stoddard.

Monty Hall, who endearingly spoke about Janet and her beloved late husband, Maxwell “Sonny” Salter, entertainingly interviewed Janet from the podium. Her sparkle and sense of humor shone through as she responded to the questions posed to her during the interview. Janet explained that she had agreed to be the honoree and accept the award in memory of her grandma Fannie, an early resident of the Jewish Home in Boyle Heights. When Joy made the award presentation, Janet thanked her Honorary Chairs Dvona Colker, Marilyn Hall, Marjorie Pressman, Reinhard “Ray” Prinz and Marilyn Ziering.

A high point of the afternoon was Mayor Lili Bosse presenting Janet with a proclamation from the City of Beverly Hills, poignantly shared personal stories of the Salters, and called Janet the “pillar and heart of our community...There’s a torch in her eye that you see nowhere else...” How true.

In addition to supporting the Jewish Home, Janet has many other charitable commitments, including the Sheba Medical Center, American Jewish University, United Jewish Fund, and Tel Aviv University. When president of the Beverly Hills Theatre Guild, she chaired numerous galas honoring popular celebrities. Her involvement in the arts also includes the Music Center, LACMA, and The Geffen Theatre.

Janet has been an active member of Temple Beth Am, where she helped to produce theatrical events, expos, art shows, and panel discussions. One of her proudest achievements is having hosted, with her husband, Jewish singles parties, through which 150 marriages have been confirmed.

The Geffen Theatre.

Regular readers of this column know we often focus on individuals and organizations whose work improves the quality of life in the Coachella Valley. Because there are so many, we never run out of subjects to feature. But, there is one organization, Guide Dogs of the Desert, that doesn’t get the recognition it deserves although the results of its work has an immediate and long lasting effect in enhancing the quality of life on its clients.

Today, every seven minutes, someone in the United States becomes blind or vision impaired, ensuring a never-ending waiting list of clients.

With the help of the Cathedral City Lions Club, which is still a sponsor, Guide Dogs of the Desert was founded in 1972 with a simple, but labor and money intensive mission: providing custom-trained guide dogs for the blind and those with special needs. All this is done at no cost to the clients.

Providing customized trained guide dogs means that the individual and his or her guide dog is paired, first to the dog, then trained together as a team. This is accomplished at the multi-acre campus of Guide Dogs of the Desert in Whitewater, adjacent to Desert Hot Springs. There the student undergoes a four-week period of in-residence training with their assigned guide dog.

There are accommodations for 12 students at a time. They are housed in a specialized dormitory offering single bedrooms for each student with a shared bathroom for every two students. There is also an auditorium with a kitchen and a dining area.

The dorm also has a recreation room equipped with a “talking” computer with Internet access, exercise equipment, a music room with instruments and a television. Microwaves and laundry equipment are also available.

To arrange a tour of the Guide Dogs of the Desert’s campus, or find ways you can be a puppy-raiser or part of the training process, call 760-329-6257.

It is not preaching any rules the world wants, but love and action.

Another Birthday!!

Frances Allen Desert Roundup

By Holiday Mathis

BIRTHDAYS—Celebrating are Arthur Kassel, Sophia Braverman, Jana Olson Collins, William Friedkin and Elliot Gould (Aug. 29); Dr. Charles Aronberg, and Timothy Bottoms (Aug. 30); Barry Mann, Warren Berlinger, Richard Gere and Itzhak Perlman (Aug. 31); Lila Tomlin and Gili Seton (Sept. 1); Carole Wells-Doherty, Shelly Sterling, Salma Hayek, Michael Harmon and Kenzie Reeves (Sept. 2); Pauline Collins and Charlie Sheen (Sept. 3); Don Galloway and Mitzi Gaynor (Sept. 4); and belatedly Sherry Tedesci (Aug. 25).

TODAY’S BIRTHDAY (Aug. 29): This is a year when you master your craft and make money at it, too. Know your work well now. You’re not missing your sense of humor. This is the professional way, and it will get you hired again and again. Next month brings a run-in with a rival. Family grows in most romantic month. Family grows inAquarius. Aquarius and Pisces people adore you.

VRIGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your loved one needs stability and security in the relationship—but not in short bursts, quick hugs or pecks on the cheek. They want some long-term security, so you can love slow.

MOON (Aug. 22-Sept. 21): You can’t just in the mood to follow the rules, especially when it’s someone you suspect they’re arbitrary or unjust. You’ll push against the boundaries to see what they’re really made of.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21): If you see an open loop, close it—it’s a train drain. You need all of your mental power to seize today’s stellar opportuni- ty. No distractions! Tie things up. Finish what you start.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Why wait until life gets stressful to connect to your power? Set aside time to center yourself, create a kind of magnetic force field around yourself and attract just what you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The challenges you get personal, but don’t worry—you’re not a regular con- tenter, you’re a force. Tonight, try to tolerate your friend’s partner with a smile (of if you can muster it).

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Put the word out. Hire a PR person or become your own. Hold nothing back. What you share will open more doors for fortune and the good fortune of others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): You’re a tor- pedo aimed at the moon, and with the tune and the good fortune of others.

TODAY’S ASTROLOGER

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Being organ- ized is a talent that comes natural to some, and for the rest, it’s a skill that can be learned. With a little fore- thought, you’ll get prepared for every important occurrence and some unimportant event.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): If only you could choose how others respond to you. Mostly it’s a game of trial and error. And instinct. And training. Some day you turned the usual game into a sci- ence and written about it, too. You might profit from looking into it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): You now make career connections as easily as you might profit from looking into it.

CANCER (June 22-July 22): Every adventure involves the element of surprise. No plan you make will endure, every risk, no excitement, no fun. You’ll dangle your toes off of the high dive today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What’s said in jest is true, at least partly. As Freud said: “There are no jokes.” Even so, you might profit from looking into it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your loved one needs stability and security in the relationship—but not in short bursts, quick hugs or pecks on the cheek. They want some long-term security, so you can love slow.

Our common humanity binds us to the innocents who are threatened,” said Janice Kamenir-Reznik, co-founder and president of JWW.

The coalition advocates for a unified global strategy to address the country’s issues, including a solution for Iraq’s 1.4 million displaced Iraqis, leveraging international sanctions, and a new UN Security Council resolution to prevent the financing of the Islamic State and other groups causing instability in the region.

The letter was published Aug. 22 and is available to read and sign on the JWW website at www.jewishworld-watch.org/jwsw.petition.

These days, Zager said he’s keen on shorter-term bonds in the 2 to 2.5-year range. However, with the Federal Reserve’s plan to raise rates in 12 months, he said he is bearish about bullet maturity bonds in the 4 to 7-year range, since they will likely get hit. Long term municipal bonds on the 20-year end, however, are still a good bet.

Let's Be Fair The Numbers by Michael McRae

In construction-defect cases, the costs of re-mediation for the issues for both the plaintiff and defendant are of paramount importance and are developed and prepared by a team of experts, including cost consultants and construction experts. These construction experts have at their disposal an array of aids to help them compute the total costs of rehabilitation and other remedial measures. Among the aids are books and computer programs containing largely comprehensive cost information, which has been periodically updated by their publishers every year in order to reflect the changing prices.

Generally, the most important aspect of cost-estimating lies in the estimator's practical experience. The best cost-estimation generally has the pragmatic knowledge gleaned through on-the-job experience such as general-contracting estimating. With this type of experience, the stage is set to accurately estimate construction defects and their various elements.

The second most important element in estimating the construction cost is the count which indicates the number of times a particular anomaly or alleged construction defect is found in the subject project. This isn’t as simple as it sounds, since different expert cost estimators often differ and count these defects elements quite differently from each other. Even when a specific construction anomaly is found on a particular building, the expert's cost estimator may claim that the defect is present in every building in the complex, whereas another expert may only find it in every other building. This condition can be very misleading. Even when a specific anomaly or alleged construction defect is found, it may not be as significant as claimed. Furthermore, it has been found that the expert's cost estimator may exaggerate the conditions and the frequency of occurrence. Hence, the cost estimator's practical experience is essential.

Cost estimating is very subjective. Yet every attorney knows that figures can be made to lie and in construction matters all number can easily be expanded exponentially. Take, for instance, a 200-unit complex which has an alleged defect which plaintiff's experts contends exists in 100% of the complex and the estimated cost is $578,000 to remediate each unit. For a total cost to repair the entire complex cost of $30 million. If another expert has a different point of view and a different method of defining the problem for a cost of $450,000 for each unit. Furthermore, he saw this particular defect as occurring in only 40% of the units to be remediated. Thus, the total cost to remediate of $15,600,000 ($450,000 X 40%) It can be seen that the 10% burden to the plaintiff has been increased to $15,600,000 from $30 million.

The human elements of estimating, which were used long before computers were invented, still exist. Even today, construction experts make measurements taken from the job-site and the final calculations are done by the estimator. The estimator's task is to create an estimate that will accurately reflect the changing prices. The margin of error in this process of coming up with the estimates varies greatly. The estimator must be skilled in the art of estimating and have a good sense of what is reasonable to charge in order to reflect the changing prices.

The second most important element in estimating the cost is the error in the estimator's practical experience. The best cost-estimation generally has the pragmatic knowledge gleaned through on-the-job experience such as general-contracting estimating. With this type of experience, the stage is set to accurately estimate construction defects and their various elements.

Although I have become less relevant, it wasn’t until recently I discovered that like mortgages (replaced by foreclosures), lickable stamps (that used to taste so...ooooo good), pennies (that cost the mint 2-cents each to produce), authentic body parts (the kind which come with you at birth), the family unit (only The Addams Family, Partridge Family, Modern Family and the First Family continue to survive), I am well on my way to being defined as obsolete.

One of the more telltale signs I’m outdated was being informed that I had reached the cut off age for participating in clinical research studies—the cornerstone of my financial empire—and would thus be deprived of a critical source of income, not to mention the loss of an important perk, the free lollipops. Add to that crushing revelation the fact I must now demonstrate to a skeptical flight attendant that I am capable of juggling a 15-pound airline door with one hand while balancing a drink in the other with the sun setting, enemy submarine periscopes disappearing under the waves, a slinky making its way along a flight of steps, viewing the results of my esophagram on YouTube and my favorite, the Chinese acrobat worth his salt.

Balancing a drink in the other before I can be seated in an exit row—a feat easily performed by any perk, the free lollipops. Add to that crushing revelation the fact I must now demonstrate to a skeptical flight attendant that I am capable of juggling a 15-pound airline door with one hand while balancing a drink in the other with the sun setting, enemy submarine periscopes disappearing under the waves, a slinky making its way along a flight of steps, viewing the results of my esophagram on YouTube and my favorite, the Chinese acrobat worth his salt.

At one time I was the “go to” guy when it came to referrals. People from near and far would call and text me to gain access to my vast collection of world renown medical specialists. They would have me for the names and unlisted phone numbers of maitre d’s at the most Michelin rated restaurants. I would be asked to part with the identities of the customer relations supervisors at all the major airlines, technology companies and poison control centers and reveal the names of their spouses, kids and pets. Folks would kill to gain access to my legendary file of “results guaranteed” complaint letters. Today as I reside in my cocoon of obsolescence, the queries have ceased. You know you’re obsolete when the opportunity to participate in focus groups and meet other out-of-date people dries up.

One of my favorite things in life has always been watching things go down and that includes the sun setting, enemy submarine periscopes disappearing under the waves, a slinky making its way along a flight of steps, viewing the results of my esophagram on YouTube and my favorite, the Chinese acrobat worth his salt.
