This cache of images was made available by the photographer's wife Margaret Miller, and they are a pure delight of a young hopeful who became an adored international star.

"I had no idea that she would become famous, and that the pictures would become valuable.

"She was just a nice, sweet, attractive girl with outrageous ambitions," recalled Richard Miller.

A gathering of the clan.

Ten children, 21 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren, along with nieces and nephews, spouses and sons-in-laws, comprised the family of seventy which dined with Big Daddy Chuck Fries, the television tycoon, celebrating his Big Nine-Oh with a Wolfgang Puck feast at the Fries Beverly Hills mansionette.

Renowned as "The Godfather of The Television Movie," Chuck, born Sept. 30, 1928, founded the annual Caucus dinner that establishes scholarships for young talents enthusiastic about careers in TV.

"They are the future of show business," reflects Chuck.

"Let's be there to support them!"

"And all at once, summer collapsed into fall" is Oscar Wilde's view about the change of seasons.

Every year at autumn time, families await the arrival of our Los Angeles Greek Fest on the grounds of the Saint Sophia Greek Orthodox Church at Normandie and Pico. Where the sizzle and aroma of Greek cooking fills the air. Exciting the palates of the folks, who are waiting for parishioners to prepare the alluring cuisine of Greece.

returns for the taste of the tender spring lamb roasted on a spit, and many of the Greek delicacies that we love, such as moussaka, pastichio, keftedes, stuffed tomatoes and zucchini. Along with the classic dips, and the pistachio baklava, kataeifi, loukoumades, which are the Greek version of the French beignet that everyone pigs out on when they visit Café du Monde in New Orleans.

Yes, of course, high leaps accompany the m a c h o dancers that the crowd applauds, and lithe young beauties corral visitors to join them in the time-honored, circle dances like the kala-
