MEASURE FOR MEASURE

BY VICTOR BAROCAS / EDITED BY WILL SHORTZ

Victor Barocas is a professor of biomedical engineering at the University of Illinois. He is married with two teenage children. He says that crossword constructing “reminds me of the research I do for my day job, because I’m trying to do something that I don’t know is possible. The constraints that my idea places on the puzzle may be too much. That uncertainty is somehow gratifying.” This puzzle, whose many circled letters appear in words across, down and diagonally (not easy to do), must have been especially challenging to create. — V.B.
